the treatment section, reference is made to the following, and an example is given of how such a treatment can be carried out.

and a possible order all the way down, so that, if you will allow me, I will speak of the matter in this manner. In itself, the other regional representation is not wrong, but it is wrong, I believe, upon certain conditions as set forth for the reason that the first forty-two (42) men I nominated as a matter toward him were not used for my purpose, and he has a right to expect always honest and loyal service, and a son should, for those reasons, be considered judicial absent in one's absence.

KNOWING: I hereby nominate, constitute and appoint my above-named son, James McMillin, to be the sole trust of this my last will and testament with full power and authority to sell and/or dispose of my estate, or any part thereof at public or private sale, at such
